MONDAY, FEBRUARY 1, 1875. Disestablishment in Scotland.

In Scotland an ecclesiastical agitation is now prevailing, which is likely to end with the disestablishment of the State Church. The established Church is what is Presbyterian in its form of government But the majority even of the Presbytelong period there has been a number of independent bodies of that persuasion. the question of patronage, a struggle arose been built or endowed by individuals. when these churches become vacant, has been reserved by the law. The secession of the Free Church grewout of an attempt patrons to force upon congregation ministers, who were totally unacceptable to the mass of the people, and even ecclesiastical bodies, whose duty it is to induct them into office. The General Assembly, the highest Church court of the country, declared that no minister was to be imposed on a confamilies and communicants should disent from his admission. The case was carried to the Civil Courts. It was there decided that this act of the General Assembly was beyond the constitutiona powers of that body, and this decision was confirmed by the House of Lords. The end was the withdrawal of nearly five hundred ministerst headed by Dr Chalmers, and the formation of the Free Church. This heroic step was taken in 1843. The Free Church has now about a thousand ministers and congregations. It and the other smaller Presbyterian bodies, together, have more members than those of the old Kirk. There are also

The present agitation arises out of an attempt to heal the separation which took place on account of patronage. In a country where there is an established church, ecclesiastical matters enter di-rectly and largely into politics. [Special Correspondence of the Intelligencer. [Special Correspondence of the Intelligencer.]
The liquor law is likely to be materially changed by this Legfislature. Already two bills have been introduced, one of them proposing to establish the "local option" system, while the other, if enacted, will do away with the best features of our present very excellent law. The fact is, West Virginia has one of the best litters laws of mystems. has one of the best liquor laws of any State in the Union. All it wants to measurably put an end to nine out of every ten of the saloons is to rigidly of every ten of the saloons is to rigidly enforce it, which has not been done, nor can it be done under Democratic rule; for it is a fact well established all over the Union that one of the cardinal principles of the Democratic party is whisky. It is to be hoped, however, that there are enough good men in the Legislature to save the present liquor law to the State.

COMPULSORY EDUCATION. The resolution of Senator Scott looking to this end has created considerable dis to this end has created considerable dis-cussion. It is a question of great import-ance to West Virginia. We have a good school system, if it could be properly carried out. But, in my opinion, nothing short of a law compelling parents to send their children to school, at least three months each year, will secure to our State the objects desired by the school law. The report of the Superintendent of Schools very clearly shows that para-ents are saily neglecting the education of their children. Not more than half the children of a proper ago under the law their children. Not more than half the children of a proper age under the law attend the public schools. They should be forced to do its Education is the foundation of free governments. If we expect our free institutions to endure forever, we must educate the masses. Nothing abort of general education will secure to us the boon of lasting freedom. Then, I say, wall means give us computers its. Ret us the boon of lasting freedom. Then, I say, by all means give us a compulsory law. But it will not be adopted by this Legislature. It is made up of a class of men who that believe in general education. Bourbons are favorable to class elevation and not a free light for all. They know that Democratic principles go down as classifications. cratic principles go down as education goes up. Education is antagonistic to their success. Hence they will do no their success. Hence they will do no more to foster it than they are forced to do by a prevailing public sentiment. We need not expect a compulsory law this have seen their greatest degrin West Virginia, I have always held that they were an important anxiliary to the successful working of our free school system. I believe that they are valuable institutions if they are properly managed, but they are not. They afford places for run-town political favorities, who, as a rule, have no competency for the educational field. This is a why they are wanting the fact cannot soon be forgotten that mearly every Republican was surned out by Democratic Boards of Regents, as teachers in these schools, a few years ago, for no other reason than that they were Republicans, this is why the Normal Schools are now, as they were, on their "last legs." Already a bill has been introduced this session, by a Democrat at that, to abolish them offer introduced this session, by a Democrat at that, to abolish them offer introduced this session, by a Democrat at that, to abolish them offer introduced this session, by a Democrat offer in the session of the cause of education. GEOLOGICAL SURYEY, cratic officials to manage a system of ed-ucation which they believe themselves to be wrong, and in its success they have no interest.

Ever since the State has been organized efforts have been made by the Legislature to secure to the State a geological survey of its territory. We have a rich State in minerala and timber, but our various estimates as to its vistness and value are all guess work. Why not give us a survey that will enable its to know just what we have, and its actual value? An effort is now being made to get a hill through the present Legislature that will order a thorough geological survey of the State THE SALT SULPHER SPRINGS.

A bill was introduced in the Legisla-ture last winter to purchase the above named springs for a lunatic asylum. I thought then, and still think; that it ought to be done, provided that a law can be passed declaring what constitutes a lunatic. In my opinion there are to-day more of them running at large than can be found in the asylum at Weston; and, strange to say, the people see fit to elect be found in the asylum at Weston; and, strange to say, the people see fit to elect a goodly amphor, of them, to the Legislature each year. If the State can be rid of this class of membrases by the purchase of the Salt Sulphur Springs, let it be done at once, and lef it be known as the asylum for political imbedies, in contra-distinction from the one at Weston. The price asked for this property is only $65,000, but if bought and used for the purposes named, it would be money saved to the State. Witness the $5,000 apent by the present Legislature to censure President Grant for choking down the Loulainan Ku-Klux, It is now settled that the Presbyterian denominations in Scotland. besides many persons who have no connection with any church. In Parliament, a bill was accordingly passed, which abolished patronage and provided that the ministers should be called by a majority of the "adherents" of the "various congregations. But this has proved to be entirely unsatisfactory. It was seen that "adherents" might be such as to throw the control into the hands of people who were as objectionable as patrons, It left the way open for all shades of opinion to be represented. The rusult has been to raise a still more fundamental question. It is that of the establishment itself. To this the United Presbyterians long have been openly opposed. The measure which the government adopted as a matter of political policy is apt to end in the speedy downfull of the establishment. A State church cannot stand the test of popular discussion, especially when its adherents are a minority of the people.

And when the establishment goes down in Scotland, how long will it be till that in England will follow?

THE New York Evening Post, a very eareful and conscientious newspaper gives currency to the report that th Rothschild-Seligman Syndicate has con cluded a new contract with the Treasury Department. The Syndicate, it is under stood, agrees positively to take $25,000,000 more of the five per tent loan, and holds a six months' option on the entire re-mainder. If this statement shall prove to be correct, the Treasury Departmen will have an easy way out of the perplexities created for it by the cirrency act lately approved. The situation at present is about this: Since the new law went into operation applications have been made for over $1,000,000 in National bank circulation. Elighty per cent of this amount in greenbacks must be retired as amount in greenbacks must be retired as soon as the demands for bank current are satisfied. The Treatury has not funds available with which to buy greenbacks. The only way to get such funds is by the sale of bonds. But the Bereatary sector bidden to sell the bonds at less than parting other than the feed of the bonds at less than parting other than the common point on up to this time that he would be unable to negotiate any further sales to the Syndicate on these terms; and hence the report of his success comes as an agreeable surprise, only, lacking confirmation in order to be a notable triumpit for Secretary Bristow and his administration.
